

Playing With Desk Toys

By Taylor S.

I love my desk toys and apparently I wasn't the only one who liked them. The ghost who was a frequent visitor to my dorm room had a interest in one of the desk toys. This desk toy was a screaming goat figurine that if pressed would scream. I always liked having the goat face forward so I see its goofy looking face while sitting at my desk. Every once in a while I would notice that the goat would be facing a different direction. I would face the goat forward again but it would always be turned around. I was, and still am, curious why the ghost was doing this. Did they like the goat? Were they offended by the goat and turn it away? Or were they just messing with me?
